the cold war the asian economic crisis and the war on terror this is a critical assessment of these events and of the interplay of security and economics in shaping political regimes and modifying market systems based on the notion that market systems are inherently political and conflict ridden this collection clarifies and explains the conflicts shaping the path of neoliberal globalization collectively it represents a disciplined and systematic address of four overarching questions what are the significant conflicts emanating from neoliberal globalization and what are their implications what are the implications of new security concerns for these conflicts and what are their impacts how are conflicts associated with globalization and security affecting social and economic policy directions can these directions be reconciled with the reproduction of existing political regimes or do they threaten their basis in addressing these questions the essays depict neoliberal globalization in the new security context as being able to accommodate a range of political regimes this fascinating collection is a must read for those with a professional interest in the region post 9 11 this book was previously published as a special issue of the journal critical asian studies in this pathbreaking work the author integrates questions of justice and stability through a model of deliberative democracy in the plural polity deliberative democracy and the plural polity provides a realistic but critical reform agenda that can animate struggles for justice in an enormously diverse world water policy seems in perpetual crisis increasingly conflicts extend beyond the statutory authority competence geographical jurisdictions and political constituencies of highly specialized governing authorities while other books address specific policy approaches or the application of adaptive management strategies to specific problems this is the first book to focus more broadly on adaptive governance or the evolution of new institutions that attempt to resolve conflicts among competing authorities adaptive governance and water conflict investigates new types of water conflicts perspectives and unique combination of theory application and analysis adaptive governance and water conflict will be a valuable book for water professionals policy scientists students and scholars in natural resource planning and management humanitarian crises resulting from conflict natural disaster or political collapse are usually perceived as a complete break from normality spurring special emergency policies and interventions in reality there are many continuities and discontinuities between crisis and normality what does this mean for our understanding of politics aid and local institutions during crises this book examines this question from a sociological perspective this book provides a qualitative inquiry into the social and political dynamics of local institutional response international policy and aid interventions in crises caused by conflict or natural disaster emphasising the importance of everyday practices this book qualitatively unravels the social and political working of policies aid programmes and local institutions the first part of the book deals with the social life of politics in crisis some of the questions raised are what is the meaning of human security in practice how do governments and other actors use crises to securitize and hence depoliticize their strategies the second part of the book deals with the question how local institutions fare under and transform in response to crises conflicts and disasters are breakpoints of social order with a considerable degree of chaos and disruption but they are also marked by processes of continuity and re ordering or the creation of new institutions and linkages this part of the book focuses on institutions varying from inter ethnic marriage patterns in sri lanka to situation of institutional multiplicity in angola the final part of the book concerns the social and political realities of different domains of interventions in crisis including humanitarian aid peace building disaster risk reduction and safety nets to address chronic food crises this book gives students and researchers in humanitarian studies disaster studies conflict and peace studies as well as humanitarian and military practitioners an invaluable wealth of case studies and unique political science analysis of the humanitarian studies field international trade often inspires intense conflict between workers and their employers in this book adam dean studies the conditions under which labor and capital collaborate in support of the same trade policies dean argues that capital labor agreement on trade policy depends on the presence of profit sharing institutions he tests this theory through case studies from the united states britain and argentina in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries they offer a revisionist history placing class conflict at the center of the political economy of trade analysis of data from more than one hundred countries from 1986 to 2002 demonstrates that the field's conventional wisdom systematically exaggerates the benefits that workers receive from trade policy reforms from conflict to coalition boldly explains why labor is neither an automatic beneficiary nor an automatic ally of capital when it comes to trade policy and distributional conflict after ethnic conflict policy making in post conflict bosnia and herzegovina and macedonia investigates how sensitive policy issues can be resolved in the aftermath of war by investigating how political elites interact and make decisions in ethnically divided societies focussing on the interactions between political elites and attempts to reach agreement across ethnic lines in bosnia and macedonia the book examines the impact that institutional factors can have on political actors and the decisions they make examining domestic factors and external influence in politics cvete koneska identifies four key drivers of post conflict cooperation cross cutting identities minority veto powers territorial autonomy and informal practices to explain inter ethnic political accommodation by looking beyond the immediate post conflict landscape created by foreign peace negotiators and aid missions to the internal political process she shows the real reasons political actors cooperate and how competing ethnic tensions are reconciled following ethnic conflict delving deeper into specific policy areas to compare successful and unsuccessful attempts at ethnic accommodation this book explores the factors behind the different policy outcomes that sustain or undermine peace and ethnic cooperation in ethnically divided societies since the end of the cold war international institutions have had to rise to challenges of instability and insecurity in europe fergus carr and theresa callan examine the changing nature of european security cooperation and conflict a key theme is the development of the new european security architecture and the roles of nato the organization for security and cooperation in europe the european union and the united nations as security providers in contemporary europe conflict prevention and crisis management has become a key activity for the eu since the creation of the common security and defence policy in 1999 the rapid growth of this policy area as well as the number of missions deployed beyond the eu's border raise important questions about the nature of the eu's international role and its contribution to international security the contributions to eu conflict prevention and crisis management analyze european conflict prevention and crisis management in terms of the eu's evolving global role its institutions and its policies the volume analyzes the eu's position in relation to the us the un and other regional security organizations and applies three different institutionalist perspectives historical rational choice and sociological institutionalism to explain the increasing institutionalization of eu crisis management it also critically analyzes the application of eu policies in west africa afghanistan and the caucasus providing a comprehensive analysis of eu crisis management the volume explores what role eu conflict prevention and crisis management plays in a european and a global context offering a comprehensive and original contribution to the literature on eu foreign and security policy this volume will be of interest to students and scholars of european politics international relations and security studies conflict can either destroy or create depending on whether and how it is guided this is the simple yet profound insight that underlies jay rothman's innovative new framework for understanding and transforming identity based conflict in nations organizations and communities reading a newspaper working in an organization or sitting in on a town meeting can provide vivid examples of identity conflicts in action based in the national organizational and community groups that provide individuals with meaning safety and dignity identity conflicts are passionate and volatile because they strike at our core who we really are and what we care about most deeply though often impervious to traditional methods of conflict management identity based conflict also provides adversaries with dynamic opportunities for finding not only common ground but higher ground than separate parties could have found on their own grounded in his grassroots conflict resolution work in the middle east work that earned him the honor of witnessing the historic white house handshake between prime minister yitzhak rabin and plo president yasser arafat and brilliantly refined to address a wide range of organizational and community conflicts rothman's aria model is a versatile and innovative synthesis of the best contemporary ideas in conflict management resolution and transformation step by step resolving identity based conflict traces the aria journey through antagonism resonance invention and action in a variety of environments in straightforward jargon free language rothman conveys solid theoretical insights and practical how to's that allow researchers and practitioners to recognize the crucial differences between identity and resource based conflicts zero in on the needs and motivations shared by even the bitterest of adversaries create joint agendas for groups in conflict transform intragroup and intergroup conflicts in organizations of every kind venezuela has had a long and bloody history of military dictatorships yet since 1958 it has developed one of the few effective competitive democracies in latin america to explain this transformation daniel h levine analyzes the development of modern mass based political parties with pervasive organizations and commanding strong loyalties the changing structure and content of social and political conflict and the gradual emergence of common norms governing political behavior this book does not pretend to be a general survey of venezuelan politics rather it is an attempt to understand for both theoretical and practical purposes the development of shared rules of the game for political action in a heterogeneous society once these norms are accepted by key elites and then imposed on recalcitrant oppositions they provide a means of controlling and managing political conflict without eliminating it mr levine's conclusions are based primarily on case studies of specific political conflicts his study of conflicts over educational reform uncovers the conditions in which a traditional sector of society catholic groups and institutions moved from violent total opposition to the political system to a position of accommodation in the second case study he examines the role of students in politics with special reference to the integration of students in national patterns of conflict and opposition originally published in 1973 mexican society throughout its modern history asking why these ruptures occurred why they mobilized mexicans of all social classes and why some led to significant political transformation div allan schmid's innovative text conflict and cooperation institutional and behavioral economics investigates the rules of the game how institutions both formal and informal affect these rules and how these rules are changed to serve competing interests this text addresses both formal and informal institutions and the impact of alternative institutions as well as institutional change and evolution with its broad applications and numerous practice and discussion questions this book will be appealing not only to students of economics but also to those studying sociology law and political science addresses formal and informal institutions the impact of alternative institutions and institutional change and evolution presents a framework open to changing preferences bounded rationality and evolution explains how to form empirically testable hypotheses using experiments case studies and econometrics includes numerous practice and discussion questions nations undergoing rapid economic growth require new institutions both formal organizations and informal modes of interpersonal behavior john powelson develops a theory of institution building to explain how nations choose such institutions what kinds they prefer and why and in what ways the institutions effectiveness essentially their conflict resolving capacity may be measured originally published in 1972 the princeton legacy library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of princeton university press these editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions the goal of the princeton legacy library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by princeton university press since its founding in 1905 this book analyses the institutional development that the peruvian state has undergone in recent years within a context of rapid extractive industry expansion it addresses the most important institutional state transformations produced directly by natural resources growth this includes the construction of a redistributive law with the mining canon the creation of a research canon for public universities the development of new institutions for environmental regulation the legitimization of state involvement in the function of prevention and management of conflicts and the institutionalization and dissemination of practices of participation and local consultation first published in 1986 james belich's groundbreaking book and the television series based upon it transformed new zealanders understanding of new zealand's great civil war struggles between maori and pakeha in the 19th century revealing the enormous tactical and military skill of maori and the inability of the victorian interpretation of racial conflict to acknowledge those qualities belich's account of the new zealand wars offered a very different picture from the one previously given in historical works this bestselling classic of new zealand history and belich's larger argument about the impact of historical interpretation resonates today now in its eighth edition working through conflict provides an introduction to conflict and conflict management that is firmly grounded in current theory research and practice covering a range of conflict settings interpersonal group and organizational the text includes an abundance of real life case studies that encompass a spectrum of theoretical perspectives its emphasis on application makes it highly accessible to students while expanding their comprehension of conflict theory and practical skills this new edition features a wealth of up to date research and case examples suggested readings and video resources and integrated questions for review and discussion interethnic competition in plural societies is often characterized by a counterbalance of political and economic strength between different groups in such cases tensions emerge as politically dominant groups fear loss of hegemony to more economically aggressive groups likewise economically successful groups require key public goods and a political atmosphere conducive to investment these social relations are couched in terms of ethnic mythologies that stress the indigenous role of one group and consequently its superior political status this book develops a model that explains how and why interethnic bargains between rival groups can erode given different institutional configurations it is hypothesized that interethnic conflict is more likely in countries where political institutions fail to insulate the political hegemony of traditionally dominant ethnic communities and redistributive programs fail to improve the economic position of ethnic majorities in such cases outbidding strategies by more extreme ethnic leaders are more successful and violence becomes more likely conflict and cooperation in multi ethnic states will be of interest to students of ethnic conflict asian politics and security studies title first published in 2003 conflict and security in the former soviet union examines the organization for security and co operation in europe osce s approach to post cold war tensions and conflicts in the former soviet area the extent to which the new procedures mechanisms and instruments developed by the organization are useful and how the osce s activities may reveal innovative contributions to conflict studies increasing world demands for water call for new institutions and rules to minimize economic and political conflicts growing water quality problems from industry and agriculture only further exacerbate supply problems such conflicts can jeopardize economic and in some parts of the world even social order to help understand the benefits and pitfalls of possible alternative organizations the contributors focus on local interregional and international cases using a variety of economic analysis methods practitioners students and scholars will find this work a valuable resource in water policy environmental policy resource economics and civil engineering the authors examine institutional responses to conflicts both between and within states and the problems of intervention in ethnic conflicts are analyzed through the crises in bosnia croatia kosovo and macedonia book jacket first published in 2005 routledge is an imprint of taylor francis an informa company dana burde shows how aid to education in afghanistan bolstered conflict both deliberately in the 1980s through violence infused anti soviet curricula and inadvertently in the 2000s through misguided stabilization programs leading scholars in psychology political science organizational theory and international relations and policy studies explore important parallels between large organizations and nation states in three key areas how they manage interdependence conflict and uncertainty the caucasus and the balkan region are almost automatically associated with conflict and war at the core of these struggles lies the quest for a new institutional relationship between territory the state and ethnic groups both regions share a similar historical and institutional legacy which must be regarded as having paved the ground for a rise in ethno nationalism there is as a result wide potential for conflict in both regions however similar structural conditions do not always turn into violent conflicts rapid institutional change as occurring in the former yugoslavia and the former soviet union can lead to new institutional arrangements on smaller scales which may in turn provide stability in inter group relations and border management therefore it is of vital importance to the study of conflict analysis to identify what conditions foster new orders and what factors actors and institutions are necessary to create a stable equilibrium in intra and inter group conflicts this book brings together a selection of case studies and theoretical approaches aimed at identifying the institutions which prevented or fostered escalation of conflict in the caucasus and former yugoslavia and will be of great benefit to students of these topics in the marine environment conflicts that arise from wicked problems in sensu ritte and webber 1973 jentoft and chuenpagdee 2009 are inevitable given the plurality of actors interests values and uses and the division of powers between provincial and federal government agencies in canada if conflict is not dealt with governance objectives may be impossible to attain therefore threatening sustainability of social ecological systems one approach to promote sustainability is to develop innovative institutional arrangements for adaptive co management olsson et al 2004 hughes et al 2005 folke et al 2005 armitage et al 2009 an example of such an innovative institution is the southwest new brunswick swnb bay of fundy marine advisory committee mac which was assembled in 2004 to address conflict between marine users this dissertation examines the differing perceptions of risk among actors in swnb and evaluates mac tools for monitoring and assessing risk it then compares these tools to a sustainability indicator framework recently developed by the canadian fisheries research network the dissertation analyses the role that conflict plays in either enabling or hindering innovative institutions and their response to risk i critique the normatively oriented literature on adaptive co management using the critical perspective of the governmentality literature following foucault dean and others in doing so i ask questions about conflict and power dynamics within the mac to better understand how people internalize ideas and how it influences their behaviour the results from this case study suggest that conflict has created new institutions and empowered new actors to assess risk and to co operate to solve problems however conflict has also profoundly restructured the parameters of political democracy swyngedouw 2005 1993 particularly as seen in the capacity of the mac to resolve conflict their mechanisms of participation and their ability to be both transparent and accountable based on this case study i make several recommendations for improving the mac down scaling governance to local institutions such as the mac will require understanding the contradictory ways in which the role of conflict both enables and hinders innovative institutions and how this in turn impacts democratic processes ibid pages ii iii drawing on recent international developments in criminal justice restorative approaches to conflict in schools highlights the long term ineffectiveness of punitive models of discipline in education contexts and examines an alternative approach underpinned by the principles of restorative justice this approach provides an opportunity for adults and young people to engage with a range of processes such as group conferencing and peer mediation whereby conflict and harm are confronted and repaired a future rather than past orientation is developed relationships are built upon the values and attitudes of respect inclusion and equality pupils learn inter personal and problem solving skills as well as social responsibility staff develop skills and confidence in working restoratively the risk of future repeat problems is minimised and a positive school ethos is developed these approaches have proven to be highly effective in criminal justice systems around the world and are beginning to be applied more widely in educational contexts this edited volume draws together for the first time contributions from an interdisciplinary field of international experts and practitioners on the subject and offers both critique and guidance in order that the implementation of restorative approaches in schools may be undertaken thoughtfully and sustainably this exciting new text will be a key reference book for locating contemporary international and inter disciplinary debate in the field water policy seems in perpetual crisis increasingly conflicts extend beyond the statutory authority competence geographical jurisdictions and political constituencies of highly specialized governing authorities while other books address specific policy approaches or the application of adaptive management strategies to specific problems this is the first book to focus more broadly on adaptive combination of theory application and analysis adaptive governance and water conflict will be a valuable book for water professionals policy scientists students and scholars in natural resource planning and management it s often claimed that future wars will be fought over water but while international water conflict is rare it s common between sub national jurisdictions like states and provinces drawing on cases in the united states china india and france this book explains why these sub national water conflicts occur and how they can be prevented this book presents the most recent theoretical insights and practical intervention methods to re build trust between management and organized employees in organizations offering a multidisciplinary perspective on trust and conflict management in organizations the book draws from diverse fields such as organizational psychology business law industrial relations and sociology it examines the often encountered breaches of trust between management and organized workers and the resulting destructive social conflicts social actions strikes or dramatic business decisions its focus is on trust and conflict management at the organizational level in an industrial relations context that of employee representatives and management the book introduces a new theoretical approach the tree of trust designed to analyse and mediate the interconnected levels of trust and distrust in industrial relations it presents case studies and practical recommendations to build trust and constructive conflict management in the organizations and illustrates these by means of experiences from different countries around the globe since gaining independence from colonial rule most african countries have been struggling to build democratic and peaceful states while african multiparty politics may be viewed as a democratic system of governance in reality it is plagued by ethnic and regional political grievances that undermine meaningful democracy by examining post conflict institutional reforms in several african countries this book sheds light on the common causes of violent conflicts and how institutional design can affect the conditions for peace and democracy in africa focussing on conceptual and practical questions of designing ethnically and regionally inclusive state institutions and the way institutions are perceived by the citizenry post conflict institutional design addresses political autonomy and control over resources issues which are often key sources of ethnic and regional grievances crucially it examines the meanings of institutional reforms as well ethnic and regional representation this title was first published in 2003 this insightful work examines institutional formation and change as evidence of the major re shaping of government internationally over the last two decades it is based on a series of case studies of institutional reform and ranges across institutions in countries including the uk china australia and the usa each case study considers questions concerning the establishment of institutions such as what have been the objectives of institutional changes what are the principles and values on which new institutions are founded in addition to looking at broad hypotheses regarding the state and new institutions the book also draws together practical lessons regarding institutional reform thus the cases are analysed as a group to throw light on a number of issues are there patterns discernible in the formation of new political institutions what do the cases reveal about what works and what does not work in forming new institutions what predictions can be made about the relationship between values and governance structures this book argues that the most sustainable means of promoting peace within states is the development of good governance which can address the root causes of conflict and meet basic human security needs good governance offers groups a voice in resolving grievances at an early stage before they grow into major problems safeguards human rights and promotes a fairer distribution of resources this open access book explores the implications of urbanization in south asia for water in security in the peri urban spaces of dhaka and khulna in bangladesh bengaluru gurugram hyderabad kolkata and pune in india and kathmandu valley in nepal the book looks into specifically peri urban water security issues in a context of rapid urbanization and social environmental changes including the changing climate and its emerging impacts it demonstrates how urbanization processes change water flows between rural and urban areas the implications of this processes for the water security of peri urban populations and how new institutions and technologies develop to mediate the relationships between peri urban communities and water the book seeks to further the debate on peri urban water security including what constitutes the peri urban socially differentiated access to water in peri urban spaces interventions for improving water access and emerging forms of cooperation and conflict related to water access in a context of urbanization and climate change as such this book is an interesting read for academics with various disciplinary backgrounds professionals working in the worlds of national and international policy ngos activist groups research and development institutes and individual readers interested in water security and urbanization after much debate by business professionals organizational conflict is now considered normal and legitimate it may even be a positive indicator of effective organizational management within certain limits conflict can be essential to productivity this book contributes to the investigation of organizational conflict by analyzing its origins forms benefits and consequences conflict has benefits it may lead to solutions to problems creativity and innovation in contrast little or no conflict in organizations may lead to stagnation poor decisions and ineffectiveness managing conflict in organizations is a vigorous analysis of the rational application of conflict theory in organizations conflict is inevitable among humans it is a natural outcome of human interaction that begins when two or more social entities engage one another while striving to attain their own objectives relationships among people or organizations become incompatible or inconsistent when two or more of them desire a similar resource that is in short supply when they do not share behavioral preferences regarding their joint action or when they have different attitudes values beliefs and skills this book examines these root causes of organizational conflict and offers constructive perspectives on its consequences we all now recognize the importance of talk today in policy settings there are more and more calls for consultation collaboration and deliberation this is particularly the case in environmental planning with its disputes over genetically modified organisms power plants and new roads rydin provides an in depth and fully theorized account of the role of talk or discourse within environmental planning combining theory reported research and original empirical case studies she highlights the problem that planners and others face when trying to expand the space for talk within planning situations and provides a detailed assessment of the prospects for consensus building and deliberative democracy she also highlights the role that discourse plays in legitimizing institutions of planning and discusses how a rationality of sustainable development may be embedded within new institutional arrangements nations undergoing rapid economic growth require new institutions both formal organizations and informal modes of interpersonal behavior john powelson develops a theory of institution building to explain how nations choose such institutions what kinds they prefer and why and in what ways the institutions effectiveness essentially their conflict resolving capacity may be measured originally published in 1972 the princeton legacy library uses
